PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT

Read the text and make a summary.

PHYSICAL FITNESS AND ITS BENEFITS

Individuals are physically fit when they can meet both the ordinary and the unusual demands of daily life safely and effectively without being overly fatigued and still have energy left for leisure and recreational activities. Physical fitness can be classified into health related and skill-related fitness. Health-related fitness has four components: cardio respiratory endurance, muscular strength and endurance, muscular flexibility, and body composition. The components of skill-related fitness are agility, balance, coordination, power, reaction time, and speed. Skill-related fitness is crucial for success in sports and athletics, and it also contributes to wellness.

Physical activity is any activity that you may do to improve or maintain your physical fitness as well as your health in general. It can include everyday activities (e.g. walking or cycling to work or school, doing housework, gardening or any active or manual work that you may do as part of your job); active recreational activities (dancing, active play amongst children, walking or cycling for recreation); sport (exercise and fitness training at a gym or during an exercise class, swimming and competitive sports such as football, rugby and tennis etc.).

Adults should aim to do a mixture of aerobic activities and muscle-strengthening activities. Aerobic activities are any activity that makes your heart and lungs work harder. To gain health benefits, it is suggested that you should do at least 30 minutes of moderate intensity physical activity on most days of the week. 30 minutes is probably the minimum to gain health benefits. However, you do not have to do this all at once. For example, cycling to work and back for 15 minutes each way adds up to 30 minutes. Moderate intensity physical activity means that you get warm, mildly out of breath, and mildly sweaty. For example, brisk walking, jogging, swimming, cycling, dancing, badminton, tennis, etc. In addition to the above aerobic activities, adults should also aim to do a minimum of two sessions of muscle-strengthening activities per week, although these should not be on consecutive days. Muscle-strengthening activities can include climbing stairs, walking uphill, lifting or carrying shopping, digging the garden, weight training, Pilates, yoga or similar resistance exercises that use the major muscle groups. Ideally, the activities and exercises should not only aim to improve or maintain your muscle strength, but also aim to maintain or improve your flexibility and balance. A session at a gym is possibly ideal, but activities at home may be equally as good. For example, stair climbing, stretching and resistance exercises can be done at home without any special clothing or equipment.

A session should be a minimum of 8–10 exercises using the major muscle groups. Ideally, to help build up your muscle strength, use some sort of resistance (such as a weight for arm exercises) and do 8–12 repetitions of each exercise. The level (weight) of each exercise should be so that you can do 8–12 repetitions before the muscle group gets tired. So, for example, for the upper arm muscles, hold a weight in your hand and bend your arm up and down 8–12 times. This should make your arm muscles tire.

Physical activity is thought to help ease stress, boost your energy levels and improve your general wellbeing and self-esteem.

Exercise:

1. Find in the text and translate in written form the paragraphs with information about:

- a) different types of physical activity;
- b) aerobic activities for adults;
- c) muscle-strengthening activities

Unit 2

Physical Education as a discipline

Read the text and make a summary.

INTERRELATEDNESS OF ALL AREAS WITHIN THE DISCIPLINES

The growth of specialized areas of study has led to the development of related career opportunities. One consequence of this specialization is that practitioners in these areas may describe their occupation in terms of their specialty, such as exercise physiologist, sport psychologist, or biomechanist. Physical education students in an effort to fully prepare themselves for a career in a particular area may become too narrowly focused and fail to learn about the other areas within the discipline.

It is important for professionals to be knowledgeable about the specialized areas within the discipline and to have an appreciation and an understanding for interrelatedness of these areas. For example, a professional who is working in the area of corporate fitness certainly needs expertise in exercise physiology to be able to evaluate the fitness levels of program participants and to design exercise prescriptions for them.

The professional philosophy will also guide the manner in which the program is conducted. Additionally, the practitioner may find knowledge from the realm of sport psychology helpful in motivating individuals to adhere to their exercise programs and to work at their fullest potential. Teaching skills (pedagogy) will assist the practitioner in clearly explaining exercises and activities to the program's participants and in educating them about the values to be delivered from participation.

If as part of corporate fitness program one teaches participants sports skills, for example, how to play tennis, one needs to be knowledgeable about the principles of motor learning. Application of motor learning theory enables the practitioner to teach the participants the skills most efficiently and effectively and in such a way that they experience success. Success in performing skills is an important factor in motivating participants to continue to participate in activity throughout their lifetime. Knowledge gleaned from the area of motor development will help the practitioner design experiences appropriate for the age of the participants.

Perhaps one of the program's participants complains of pain while jogging. An understanding of biomechanics will be useful in evaluating the participant's jogging technique, and knowledge from the area of sports medicine will be helpful in the prevention of injuries. As a future practitioner, it is important to learn about the entire discipline of physical education and the relationship among the specialized areas.

Exercise:

1. Retell the text "Interrelatedness of All areas within the Disciplines".
2. Read and translate the text with help of dictionary in writing.
3. Put all types of the questions (general, alternative, disjunctive, special) on the text.
4. Make the sentence below Negative and Interrogative (and also in Past and Future Indefinite).

The sport psychologist helps individuals achieve their optimal level of performance.

5. Play out the conversation.

- I've never supposed that the discipline of physical education comprises so many various subdisciplines.
- No wonder. With increase of knowledge in that field there have appeared specialized areas of study.
- And what are the most common of them?
- They are sport sociology, biomechanics, sport medicine, exercise physiology, sport philosophy, sport management, adapted physical education, etc.
- Are they all interrelated?
- It goes without saying. Understanding each of them is necessary.
- You have said it.

6. Retell the topic.

DISCIPLINE OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT

As an academic discipline Physical Education and Sport is concerned with the study of human movement. With the increase of knowledge in that field there were emerged new subdisciplines or specialized areas of study. For example, the most common of them are the following.

Sport sociology studies the role of sport in society.

Biomechanics is the study of the various forces that act on the human body while exercising. It identifies specific aspects of athlete technique and makes suggestions for its improvement.

Sports medicine is the medical relationship between physical activity and human body. It is concerned with prevention of injury, therapy, rehabilitation and studies the influence of environment and drugs on human physical activity.

Exercise physiology is applied physiology which deals with functional capabilities of the human body while exercising including aerobic capacity, fatigue, etc.

Sport philosophy analyzes and examines various beliefs and offers logic, problem solving as an aid to decision-making .

History analyzes past events explaining their significance in relationship to the present and future. Sport pedagogy is the study about teaching in the field of physical education and sport.

Sport psychology utilizes various principles, concepts, and facts from the field of psychology to study behavior in sport and physical education.

Motor learning is the study that deals with different aspects of learning sport technique and motor skills for long periods of time.

Adapted physical education is concerned with programs for persons with special needs or disabilities.

Sport management covers managerial aspects of sport, including organized sport and sport enterprises or business.

All these specialized areas are interrelated and make their contribution to the discipline of Physical Education and Sport.

HEALTHY LIFESTYLE

What does a healthy lifestyle mean? According to the dictionary, lifestyle is a way of life or style of living that reflects the attitudes and value of a person or group. A healthy lifestyle would be a way of living that would result in a healthy mind, body and spirit.

A healthy lifestyle comprises of many components.

Healthy eating means eating food that are nutritional and good for the body like fresh fruits and vegetables, low fat diets, unrefined carbohydrates, etc. It includes avoiding food that is bad for you like refined carbohydrates, fatty foods, alcohol, etc. Eating in moderation is the essential component of healthy eating.

Regular exercise is an important part of a healthy lifestyle. Aerobic exercise is good for your heart and your body. Yoga has a therapeutic affect and also helps to reduce your stress level. Pilates are great for strengthening your «core» muscles which are situated around your midsection. You could consider some other forms of exercise like Tai Chi, martial arts and Qi Gong. It is essential that you incorporate any kind of exercises in to your daily life to help keep you fit and maintain your weight at a healthy level.

Managing stress efficiently is a critical part of a healthy lifestyle. Failure to manage stress effectively can harm your body and affect your relationship with others. If left unattended, stress can also lead to alcohol or drug addiction.

Sleeping right, having a positive outlook about life and having a balanced life are also the necessary components of a healthy lifestyle. If you go without sleep for a period of time, every area of your life will be ultimately affected. If it becomes a regular pattern in your life, you could endanger your health and reduce your overall performance. This can ultimately affect all other areas of your life, personal as well as professional.

Living a healthy lifestyle takes discipline. You must make up your mind and choose things that are good for you and your loved ones. Living a healthy lifestyle involves taking care of your physical, mental and spiritual health. You need to arm yourself with appropriate knowledge that will ensure that you get the result you want.

The physical, mental and spiritual aspects of your life are intertwined. To be happy and healthy, you need to keep all these aspects of your life balanced.

UNIT 4

TERMINOLOGY FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT AS A DISCIPLINE

Retell the oral topic.

HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Health comprises several dimensions: physical health, mental health, social health, spiritual health, and emotional health. Traditionally, the good health was considered as the absence of disease. If you were not sick, you were healthy.

Today the emphasis is on wellness. Wellness is a state of optimal well-being.

According to wellness philosophy, the achievement of a healthy lifestyle is the responsibility of the individual. Attainment of a healthy lifestyle is achieved through proper nutrition, regular and appropriate exercise, adequate rest and relaxation, effective stress management, adherence to sound safety practices, and elimination of controllable risk factors as smoking or drug use.

Physical, psychological, emotional, spiritual, environmental, genetic, and social factors all interact to influence an individual's state of health. Thus, all of these factors must be considered when helping an individual achieve a state of optimal health.

Health promotion programs have grown within the past decade. These programs focus on helping individuals make changes in behaviors and alterations in their lifestyle that will encourage and support an optimal state of health. Self-responsibility is central to any health promotion efforts; individuals must assume the responsibility for making choices that contribute to the attainment and maintenance of health.

ATHLETICS

Athletics are organized, competitive games or sports engaged in by skilled individuals. Within educational institutions, athletics have prospered and grown rapidly. In recent years the interest in athletic participation has expanded to other segments of the population. Competitive youth sport programs have become very popular. The International Senior Games for older adults and the Paralympics for individuals with disabilities are two examples of this expanded interest.

Many lay persons frequently think of athletics and physical education as synonymous. However, athletics is only one aspect of a broad physical education program.

Answer the questions.

1. What athletics is? 2. Is it very popular with educational institutions now? 3. Are the other segments of population interest in them? 4. What are the examples of this interest? 5. How do many lay persons think about athletics and physical education? 6. Is athletics only one aspect of a broad physical education program?

2. Read the text about the prominent athlete.

Born in Maryland on June 30, 1985, Michael Phelps started swimming when he was seven years old. At the age of 15, he placed fifth in the 200-meter butterfly at the 2000 Olympics, where he was the youngest male to compete in the games since 1932. At the 2001 Spring Nationals in the United States, Phelps became the youngest man ever to break a world record in swimming, at the age of 15 years and 9 months. Phelps also became the first swimmer in history to break five individual world records at one meet, at the 2003 World Championships in Barcelona. At the age of 18, in 2003, Phelps won the Sullivan Award as the top amateur athlete in the United States. He has been World Swimmer of the Year in 2003, 2004, 2006, 2007 and 2008; and has been American Swimmer of the Year for 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2006, 2007 and 2008. At the 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing, Phelps won eight gold medals, breaking the record of seven golds in one Olympics set by Mark Spitz in 1972. He holds a total of 16 Olympic medals of which two are bronze and the rest gold.

Put the facts from Michael Phelps's career in right order.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND PHILOSOPHY

1. Read the text and make a summary.

Physical education is an educational process. Its main aim is the improvement of human performance by means of physical activities. Physical education is concerned with acquisition of motor skills, maintenance of fitness and knowledge of positive attitudes towards physical activity.

There are a lot of specialized areas of this study, such as sport psychology, sport pedagogy, sport sociology, exercise sociology, exercise physiology, and motor learning. Each practitioner should be knowledgeable about them.

Philosophy is critical to our endeavors. Philosophy can aid practitioners by guiding their efforts and assisting them in resolving problems that may confront them. Various philosophies influence the nature and practice of education and physical education and sports programs.

Within the last 25 years there is a shift from the traditional philosophy of physical education and sport to a more modern, humanistic philosophy.

Each practitioner/professional should develop his/her own philosophy because it influences the objectives and outcomes of the programs.

2. Read the text and tell your opinion

The importance of physical education and sport is now stressed for all segments of the population, including industrial employees, the elderly, youths, and the public in general. Physical educators who serve as leaders, administrators, and instructors for these groups should also be concerned with developing a sound philosophy of physical education and sport. Most of the concepts of a philosophy for programs in schools and colleges are applicable to programs that exist outside the educational realm. A philosophy of physical education and sport for both school and nonschool programs should be humanistic in its approach, meet the needs of the participants, have a sound scientific basis, understand the role of physical activity in human performance, and enhance the quality of life for its participants.

Answer the question

1. Only a small part of the population is aware of importance of physical education and sport, isn't it? 2. Are physical educators concerned with developing a sound philosophy of physical education and sport? 3. Is it possible to apply the concepts of a philosophy outside the educational realm? 4. Should a philosophy of physical education be humanistic in its approach? 5. A philosophy should meet the needs of the participants, shouldn't it? 6. Should a philosophy have a sound scientific basis or not?

3. Match the terms with its true meaning.

CENTRAL BELIEFS UNDERLYING TRADITIONAL PHILOSOPHIES

OBJECTIVES FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT

Read the text and give its main idea.

WHY ARE THE OBJECTIVES NEEDED IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT?

Physical educators must have goals for their programs. Once the program's goals have been identified, objectives that will lead to the attainment of the goals should be delineated and clearly defined. Whether a physical educator is working as an elementary school teacher, an intercollegiate coach, an athletic trainer in a sports medicine clinic, an exercise leader in a corporate or cardiac fitness program, or a practitioner in any setting, relevant objectives are needed. Some reasons for their necessity follow:

1. Objectives will provide a guide for physical educators' efforts.
2. Objectives will help physical educators better understand the worth of their field.
3. Objectives will help physical educators make more meaningful decisions when issues and problems arise.
4. Objectives will help physical educators better interpret their endeavors to the public.
5. Objectives will help physical educators to know and to appreciate the outcomes participants will achieve through involvement in a sound program under their direction.

Exersice:

1. Find in the text the English equivalents for:

досягнення мети; чіткий/точний; сукупно; забезпечувати керівництво; встановлювати/змальовувати; причина; призвести до; мати вимірюване вираження; прямувати; засіб; необхідність; бажаний результат; добре сформульований, оцінювати, доцільний.

2. Open the brackets and put the verbs into right tense form.

1. Objectives (provide) a guide for physical educators' efforts.
2. Attainment of desired goals (require) that efforts be focused on their achievement.
3. Objectives (must, define) clearly what (must, be achieved) if the sought-after goals (be) to be accomplished.
4. The goals and associated objectives (must, be) at the forefront of the teacher's mind when instructing students in physical education class and on the leader's mind when conducting a class at a community center or corporate fitness center.
5. If the objectives (be) clearly understood, this (influence) the activities that (be) included in the program and the manner in which they are presented.
6. The objectives (serve) as a guide for the physical educator” actions so that the interests and needs of the participants (be) served.

3. Complete each sentence with a word from a box.

UNIT 7

Sport and society

Read the text and give its main idea.

WHAT IS SPORT

A UNESCO Committee defines sport as: "Any physical activity which has the character of play and which involves a struggle with oneself or with others, or a confrontation with natural elements". They added: "If this activity involves competition, it must then always be performed in a spirit of sportsmanship. There can be no true sports without the idea of fair play. Sport is governed by a set of rules or customs. In sports, the key factors are physical capabilities and skills of the competitor when determining the outcome (winning or losing).

Activities such as card games and board games, are classified as «mind sports» and some are recognized as Olympic sports, requiring primarily mental skills. Non-competitive activities, for example jogging or playing catch are usually classified as forms of recreation.

Physical activity such as scoring goals or crossing a line first often defines the result of a sport. However, the degree of skill and performance in some sports is judged according to well-defined criteria. This is in contrast with other judged activities such as beauty pageants and body building, where skill does not have to be shown and the criteria are not as well defined.

Records are kept and updated for most sports, while failures and accomplishments are widely announced in sport news. Sports are most often played just for fun or for the simple fact that people need exercise to stay in good physical condition. However, professional sport is a major source of entertainment.

While practices may vary, sports participants are expected to display good sportsmanship, and to be respectful of opponents and officials.

MOVING IS LIVING

Read the text and give its main idea.

GENERAL FACTORS THAT AFFECT MOVEMENT

Human movement involves most of the systems of the body, such as the skeletal system (e.g., skeletal levers), the nervous system (e.g., nervous impulses to the muscles), and the muscular system (e.g., muscular contractions for force). Human movement is concerned with mechanical principles or the forces that act on the human body (e.g., gravity) and the effects that these forces produce.

All movement is governed by certain mechanical principles. An understanding of the forces that act on the body as it moves is essential if people are to engage in creative and meaningful movement. Understanding of the biomechanical principles of movement is important for physical educators if they are to teach movement skills effectively.

Physiological factors affect movement as well. Physical fitness and body build are two factors among the many that affect the way humans move. Poor muscular development is deterring factor in generating force, and the mechanical advantage of levers might be reduced in a person who is small in stature. Furthermore, physical fitness qualities, such as flexibility, endurance, and strength are basic to and will greatly influence motor performance.

Movement is also affected by psychological factors. Phenomena such as fear, anxiety, and self-concept might affect human movement in a positive or negative way. Fear or anxiety, for example, may prevent a performer from relaxing, thus impeding effective performance.

Sociological factors influence human movement. The persons with whom one is competing or performing, the relationship of the performer to the group, and the desire for social mobility are examples of sociological factors that may leave their impact on the quality of movement.

Answer the question

1. What body's systems does human movement involve? 2. What is human movement concerned with? 3. What principals all movement governed by? 4. Do physiological factors affect movement? 5. Which are two factors that affect the way humans move? 6. What else is the basic to influence motor performance? 7. What psychological factors is movement also affected? 8. Do social factors influence human movement?

1. ... the content of physical skills.

2. ... a progression in the acquisition of physical skills with fundamentals the easiest and specialized skills the most difficult.
3. ... the repeated teaching and reviewing of the same movement in one sport after another as one movement is often the basis for many specialized skills.
4. ... the transfer of movements and movement knowledge from activity to activity. The performer is no longer asked to learn a skill such as throwing before learning every sport in which it is included.
5. ... the learner to be aware of how and when skills transfer to new activities that they may wish to pursue at a later date.
6. ... a system for “learning to learn” or “learning to teach oneself” physical skills. It is as system to be used in teaching oneself new movements.

4. Retell the topic

Movement education strives to make the individual aware of the movement of the entire body and to become intellectually as well as physically involved. The challenge set by a problem in movement is first perceived by the intellect and then solved by the body moving through space, reacting to any obstacles within that space and to the limitations and existing restrictions. Learning accrues as the individual accepts and attempts to solve increasingly difficult problems. Inherent in this process is the concept of individual differences. Numerous ways to solve a stated problem may exist, and one’s abilities and capacities.

HISTORICAL FOUNDATIONS OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT

1. Retell the oral topic.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT IN ANCIENT GREECE

A “golden age” of physical education and sport refers to ancient Greece. The Greeks strove for physical perfection and this objective affected all their life. No country in history has been held physical education and sport in such high esteem as did ancient Greece.

There are different evidences about physical activity being popular: both artifacts and literature. Physical education and sport was a vital part of every Greek man and began in childhood. “Exercise for the body and music for the soul” they said. The boys began with a general physical training program. It was believed that exercising contributed to courage, discipline and wellbeing. Besides it stressed a sense of fair play, developed aesthetic values and amateurism. They ran, wrestled, jumped, danced etc., not for reward but to make the body beautiful. They were against professionalism. An ideal of education in ancient Greece was to achieve a balance in moral, mental, physical and aesthetic development.

The national festivals were held in honour of some heroes or deities and involved physical prowess events. The most famous Olympia festival in honour of Zeus, the supreme god gave the name to the modern Olympic Games. Athletic contests were the main attraction and drawing force there. A truce was declared during the games. To be crowned a victor in an Olympic event was to receive the highest honour in Greece.

Physical education and sport in ancient Greece will always be viewed with pride by members of this profession.

2. Read the advertisement for a summer camp.

Since 1978, when Professor of Physical Education Tasos Karavoulis founded the first sport camp in Greece, our main goal has been to prop children’s physical and mental growth. Professor Karavoulis has inspired us all with his commitment to create a high quality camp and since then, we have all been devoted in operating and constantly improving the sport camp.

Our commitment all these years helped in developing SPORTCAMP into one of the leading sport, and recreation centers, comprising a camp that operates during summer. We employ a group of standard staff, and have created fully equipped Olympic size sport facilities and state-of-the-art lodgings and restaurant.

However, we do not let this progress overwhelm us. We guard our reputation and do all our best to preserve the high quality of our services. SPORTCAMP is recognized as a distinguished camp with loyal friends all over Greece, where campers have tons of fun and are educated at the same time.

PHYSICAL ACTIVITY IN TEENAGERS

A negative health consequence of not engaging in adequate amounts of physical activity is obesity. It is important in today's society to continue to be physically active in order to maintain a healthy body.

Several studies have found a positive association between the times spent viewing television and increased prevalence of obesity in children. In order to maintain a healthy body children and teenagers need an hour of physical activity a day. However, the recommended hour of physical activity does not have to be all at one time. Doing smaller tasks throughout the day also count as physical activity. To be more active in their lives teens need to find fun and easy ways to become more active: walk to school, ride a bike, play a sport, etc.

The most important thing is to start developing healthy behaviors now that they can maintain throughout their lives. Teens need more physical activity to avoid health problems in the future. Teens that are obese are extremely likely to become obese adults. This leads to many health problems such as: diabetes, cancers, and many cardiovascular diseases.

Excessive time spent in front of a screen has its adverse effects. Research has shown that high levels of electronic media can lead to school problems, attention difficulties, sleep disorders, eating disorders, and obesity from a lack of physical activity.

There are many benefits to physical activity outside of the obvious obesity problems. Physical activity can help teens to perform better in school, feel better about themselves, develop skills in sports, build strength and endurance. To have more sports is a great way to become active and develop other skills such as leadership and teamwork.

However not everyone wants to play a sport because of time commitments or other various reasons. There are many other ways to get the amount of physical activity that you need. Some of the more simple ideas for daily activity include taking a walk, dancing, walking the dog, riding a bike, taking the stairs, playing ball in the back yard, washing cars, doing yard work, swimming, taking classes such as yoga or aerobics, weight lifting, going to the local park, or going in-line skating.

The tasks of the professionals in sports related careers depend on the role and job type. The athletes, coaches, umpires, doctors, all have different tasks to perform.

The athletes are the key aspect of these careers. They are required to practice and perform thoroughly. They are supposed to obey their coaches and trainers for better results.

The coaches train and teach the players various tactics and techniques to win. They make them practice and help them to enhance their physical stamina. They induce unity and sportsmanship within the players. The coaches hold major part of the responsibility of the victory or defeat of the team.

Umpires (referees) are present on the ground along with the competing teams. They keep a keen observation on the players and declare decisions like dismissals, winning points, faults, fines, penalties etc.

They play a crucial role in keeping the players in discipline and ensuring a fair play.

Doctors, physiotherapists and remaining medical team assist and accompany the players at all venues and locations. They provide immediate help to the players in case of injuries, bruises, cramps, muscle-pulls etc.

Team managers, board members are the professionals who take care of the official work and arrangements of the team, coaches and other assistances. They organize and schedule various events and leagues. They handle the department of hiring and firing the players and other professionals. They even take care of the profits and losses of the boards, leagues or business of the same.

UNIT 12

COACHING CAREERS IN SPORT

INCREASING YOUR PROFESSIONAL MARKETABILITY

In coaching realm one's previous experience as an athlete in the sport is an asset. Many former athletes have capitalized on their experience to secure coaching positions. Previous work as an assistant or head coach certainly is in one's favor. Professional contacts, officials ratings in sport, and membership in a professional organization are helpful in getting hired or advancing. Many states require that coaches hold teaching certification; holding such certification gives one more flexibility in selecting from job opportunities.

Finally, one can enhance one's credentials by gaining as much practical experience as possible, working with people of all ages and abilities. This holds true whether you are seeking work in a school or nonschool setting or in coaching. This experience can be gained through volunteer work, part-time employment, summer employment, or through supervised field experiences sponsored by your college or university. Being able to cite such practical experiences on your resume may prove invaluable when you are seeking to gain employment. Membership in professional organizations and professional contacts may also be helpful in securing employment.

Prospective coaches can enhance their marketability. Building on your skills, taking additional courses, and gaining as much practical experience as possible will increase your options and enhance your opportunities for employment.

DANCE THERAPY

The use of dance has proved very helpful in alleviating physical, emotional, and social problems. It has received wide acceptance as a psychotherapeutic means of physical and emotional expression. Through dance the patient or client has freedom of movement and gains a sense of identity. Dance encourages individuals to recognize their emotions and express them. Through dance, by varying movement qualities, individuals can convey their feelings and ideas to others and perhaps portray emotions that they cannot verbally express. Dance provides a means not only to express one's feelings and emotions to others but also a means of gaining insight into oneself. Dance, by its very nature, can promote sensitivity and awareness.

Dance therapy is one of the fastest-growing professions. It is used in rehabilitation centers, psychiatric centers, geriatric programs, hospitals, and in programs for persons with disabilities. Dance therapy is used with all segments of the population from very young to very old persons. Certification standards for dance therapists have been established by the American Dance Therapy Association (ADTA).

7. Answer the question:

“Do you consider dance therapy an effective psychotherapeutic means of physical and emotional expression?”

COACHING CAREERS IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT

Individuals aspire to a coaching career for many reasons: their love for the sport, their own previous involvement on athletic teams, and the enjoyment they derived from participation.

Within the last decade coaching opportunities have increased tremendously both at the expense of women sport and the increased interest in sport by people of all ages.

A coaching career has both advantages and disadvantages. The opportunity to work with athletes and to help them to achieve their fullest potential, the excitement of winning and the respect accorded to a coach are some of the benefits of coaching. There are several drawbacks associated with coaching. Long practice hours and the hours spent coaching during competition, untold hours spent in preparing practices, public relations work, recruiting, etc. Salaries vary greatly, depending on the level and sport coached. A high turnover is associated with coaching.

Criteria for certification of coaches vary from a state to a state. It is recommended that for certification, coaches should have knowledge of the medical aspects of coaching, an understanding of the psychological and sociological foundations of coaching, familiarity with kinesiological foundations of coaching, understanding of the physiological aspects of coaching, the knowledge of coaching theory and techniques.

Prospective coaches can enhance their marketability. Building on your skills, taking additional courses, and gaining as much practical experience as possible will increase your options and enhance your opportunities for employment.

LEADERSHIP AND PROFESSIONAL ORGANIZATIONS IN PHYSICAL EDUCATION AND SPORT

Read the text and make a summary.

A BRAVE ATTEMPT

Special Olympics and Paralympics are two separate organizations recognized by the International Olympic Committee (IOC). They are similar in that they both focus on sport for athletes with a disability and are run by international non-profit organizations. Apart from that,

Special Olympics and the Paralympics differ in three main areas: the disability categories of the athletes that they work with; the criteria and philosophy under which athletes participate; the structure of their respective organizations. With a Headquarters in Washington D.C. Special Olympics happens year-round in seven regions of the world, 170 countries and has 228 Programs operating on a daily basis to provide empowerment through 30 Olympics-type sports. There is an International Governing Board of Directors. Special Olympics, a non-profit organization, that was officially founded in 1968, giving form to the vision of its founder, Eunice Kennedy- Shriver (1921–2009), sister of USA President John F. Kennedy. A vision born in June 1962 in a summer camp at Eunice's home, where children and adults with intellectual disabilities were invited in order to explore their abilities in various sports activities.

Only two years after the summer of 1968, took place in Illinois in the US the first International Special Olympics Summer Games with 1,000 participating athletes with intellectual disabilities from 26 states of the US and Canada, while in December 1971 Special Olympics received from the US Olympic Committee the privilege to be among the two organizations in America have the right to use the title «Olympics».

From then on until today, Special Olympics have evolved to a Global Movement that offers the opportunity to 3,1 million athletes with intellectual disabilities from 185 countries, mainly through sports, to reinforce their self-esteem, to discover their special abilities, and in this way become active and useful members of their societies.

Like the Olympic Games and the Paralympics Games, the Special Olympics World Games include summer and winter versions. The first International Special Olympics Winter Games were held in February 1977 in Steamboat Springs, Colorado, USA. In the games held every two years by the Special Olympics movement in the world, offering the opportunity to take part in more than 30 Olympic-type summer and winter events, participate 550,000 athletes from the US, 500,000 from Europe, 700,000 from China, and 410,000 from India.

HEALTH AND FITNESS TRENDS

There are lots of positive reasons for getting fitter, including meeting new people, discovering new interests and generally feeling better. Where exercise is concerned, there are a variety of regimens to choose from that promote physical fitness, health and wellness. Weight training, yoga and pilates are among the most common workouts today.

Weight training is a type of strength training that uses weights for resistance. Weight training challenges your muscles by providing a stress to the muscle that causes it to adapt and get stronger. Weight training can be performed with free weights, such as barbells and dumbbells, or by using weight machines.

Many people associate strength (weight) training only with athletes.

At one time, perhaps, strength training was reserved only for athletes. Certainly the world of muscle building (apart from body building) was relatively unknown. But all that has changed in the last few generations as the health benefits of muscle strength and endurance have become known for men and women of all ages.

Yoga is considered a mind-body type of complementary and alternative medicine practice. Yoga brings together physical and mental disciplines to achieve peacefulness of body and mind, helping you relax and manage stress and anxiety.

Yoga has many styles, forms and intensities. Hatha yoga, in particular, may be a good choice for stress management. Hatha is one of the most common styles of yoga, and some beginners find it easier to practice because of its slower pace and easier movements. But most people can benefit from any style of yoga – it's all about your personal preferences. The core components of hatha yoga and most general yoga classes are poses and breathing. Yoga poses, also called postures, are a series of movements designed to increase strength and flexibility. Poses range from lying on the floor while completely relaxed to difficult postures that may have you stretching your physical limits. Controlling your breathing is an important part of yoga. In yoga, breath signifies your vital energy.

Pilates is named for its creator, Joseph Pilates, who developed the exercises in the early 1900s. It is a method of exercise that consists of lowimpact flexibility and muscular strength and endurance movements. Pilates emphasizes use of the abdominals, lower back, hips and thighs. A pilates routine typically includes 25 to 50 repetitive strength training exercises. Pilates is similar to calisthenics, such as sit-ups and pushups. In fact, some people call pilates the ultimate form of calisthenics. By practicing pilates regularly, you can achieve a number of health benefits, including improvement of core stability, posture, balance, flexibility and prevention and treatment of back pain.

DOPING

Read the text and make a summary.

A DEADLY GAME

Doping in sport is not a new phenomenon. Athletes have taken performance-enhancing agents since the beginning of time. The legendary Arthurian knights supposedly drank magical potions from the cup of Merlin. Celtic tales describe the use of strengthening potions to aid valour in battle and the druids' use of narcotics is well documented by historians. The Ancient Olympics in Greece were riddled with corruption and doping to the extent that the games had to be dissolved.

In Ancient Rome, gladiators drank herbal infusions to strengthen them before chariot races and going into battle. Almost two millennia later, the first documented report in the medical literature was published in 1865 in the British Medical Journal, citing expulsion of a swimmer from an Amsterdam canal race, for taking an unnamed performance enhancing drug. The first doping death occurred in 1886 in cycling. In the early 1900s, the most popular doping agent was a cocktail of alcohol and strychnine. The use of strychnine was superseded by amphetamine, following its development in the 1930s. In 1960, the Danish cyclist, Kurt Jensen, died after overdosing on amphetamine in an attempt to seek competitive advantage and the search for control measures began. Methods of anti-doping control were first pioneered in the 1960s, by Arnold Beckett, an academic pharmacist with a specialist interest in sports pharmacy, based at Kings College London. In 1968, the International Olympic Committee published the first banned list of drugs and implemented the first formal drug testing programme at the Montreal Olympics.

It is not just athletes who are involved in the doping games, however. Coaches, managers, team doctors and fringe practitioners have all been implicated.

Doping not only contravenes the spirit of fair competition, it can be seriously detrimental to health. Elite athletes who turn to doping take the greatest risks which seem to pale in contrast to their burning desire for gold. Anabolic steroids affect cardiovascular and mental health and are associated with an increased risk of neoplasm. Dietary supplements containing ephedrine alkaloids have been linked to serious health risks including hypertension, tachycardia, stroke, seizures and death.

The peptide hormones or so-called «sports-designer drugs» are thought to be the most dangerous, although the combination of amphetamines, anabolic steroids or antihypertensive combined with intense exertion in athletes are just as hazardous. Sport goes beyond a measure of athletic excellence and the winning of trophies and medals. True winners are those who achieve their goals through talent, skill, training, motivation and rising to all the challenges their sports present.

Unit 15 REHABILITATION

Read the text and make a summary.

OVERVIEW OF REHABILITATION

Rehabilitation is needed by people who have lost the ability to function normally, often because of trauma, a stroke, an infection, tumor, surgery, or a progressive disorder. Physical therapy, occupational therapy, treatment of any pain and inflammation, and retraining to compensate for specific lost functions are the typical focuses of rehabilitation.

Treatment usually involves continued sessions of one-on one training for many weeks.

The need for rehabilitation crosses all age groups, although the type, level, and goals of rehabilitation often differ by age. For example, the goal of an older person who has severe heart failure and has had a stroke may simply be to regain the ability to do as many self-care activities such as eating, dressing, bathing, transferring between a bed and a chair, using the toilet, and controlling bladder and bowel function as possible. The goal of a younger person who has had a fracture is often to regain all functions as quickly as possible. Nonetheless, age alone is not a reason to alter goals or the intensity of rehabilitation, but the presence of other disorders or limitations may be.

After a major disorder, injury, or surgical procedure, people must follow the recommended rehabilitation program if they want to recover as fully as possible. Rehabilitation can be done in a doctor's office or at home as well as in rehabilitation centers.

Where rehabilitation takes place depends on the person's needs. Many people recovering from injuries can be treated as outpatients in a therapist's office. People with severe disabilities may need care in a hospital or inpatient rehabilitation center. In such settings, a rehabilitation team provides care. A team approach is best because significant loss of function can lead to other problems, such as depression, apathy, and financial problems.

The rehabilitation team or therapist sets both short-term and long-term goals for each problem. Short-term goals are set to provide an immediate, achievable target. Long-term goals are set to help people understand what they can expect from rehabilitation and where they can expect to be in several months. People are encouraged to achieve each short-term goal, and the team closely monitors the progress. The goals may be changed if people become unwilling or unable (financially or otherwise) to continue or if they progress more slowly or quickly than expected.

Care at home can be appropriate for people who cannot travel easily but who require less care, such as those who can transfer from bed to a chair or from a chair to a toilet. However, family members or friends must be willing to participate in the rehabilitation process. Providing rehabilitation at home with the help of family members is highly desirable, but it can be physically and emotionally taxing for all involved.

Sometimes a visiting physical therapist or occupational therapist can help with home care.

Regardless of the severity of the disability or the skill of the rehabilitation team, the final outcome of rehabilitation depends on the person's motivation.

Exercise:

1. Find in the text and translate in written form the paragraphs with information about:

- a) short-term and long-term goals in rehabilitation;
- b) goals of rehabilitation according to age;
- c) rehabilitation at home

2 Answer the questions.

1. When people are in need of rehabilitation?

Rehab Robots Lend Stroke Patients a Hand

Stroke Rehab Getting Patients Back On Their Feet

Robot-assisted therapy has measurable benefits for patients with a weaker arm following a stroke. The researches were carried out by National Taiwan University, Chang Gung University, and Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, Taipei Hospital. They aimed to investigate how robot-assisted therapy helps arm function to improve after a stroke.

Stroke patients usually have difficulties transferring motor skills learned in therapy to their daily living environment because of cognitive deficit. One of the key findings of the study was that robot-assisted therapy, when combined with functional task training, helps functional arm use and improves bimanual arm activity in daily life. Patients following a stroke often have weakness on one side of the upper body (hemi paresis), which can make daily life more difficult. Robotic rehabilitation is increasingly available, and holds promise for enhancing traditional post-stroke interventions. Because robots never tire, they can provide massive and intensive training in a consistent manner without fatigue, with programming precisely tailored to each patient's needs.
